AN APRIL GIRL.

The girl that is born on an April day
Has a right to be merry lightsome, gay;
And that is the reason I dance and play
And frisk like a mote in a sunny ray,—
Wouldn't you
Do it, too,
If you had been born on an April day?

The girl that is born on an April day
Has also a right to cry, they say;
And so I sometimes do give way
When things get crooked or all astray,—
Wouldn't you
Do it, too,
If you had been born on an April day?

The girls of March love noise and fray;
And sweet as blossoms are girls of May:
But I belong to the time mid-way,—
And so I rejoice in a sunny spray
Of smiles and tears and hap-a-day,—
Wouldn't you
Do it, too,
If you had been born on an April day?

Heigho! and hurrah! for an April day,
Its cloud, its sparkle, its skip and stay!
I mean to be happy whenever I may,
And cry when I must; for that's my way.
Wouldn't you
Do it, too,
If you had been born on an April day?

VIA SOLITARIA.

AN UNPUBLISHED POEM. BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

Alone I walk the peopled city,
Where each one seems happy with his own:
Oh! friends, I ask not for your pity—
I walk alone.

No more for me yon lake rejoices,
Though moved by loving air of June,
Oh! birds, your sweet and piping voices
Are out of tune.

In vain for me the elm tree arches
Its plumes in many a feathery spray;
In vain the evening's starry marches
And sunlit day.

In vain your beauty, summer flowers;
Ye cannot greet these cordial eyes;
They gaze on other fields than ours—
On other skies.

The gold is rifled from the coffer,
The blade is stolen from the sheath;
Life has but one more boon to offer,
And that is—Death.

Yet well I know the voice of duty.
And, therfore, life and health must crave,
Though she who gave the world its beauty
Is in her grave.

I live, O lost one! for the living
Who drew their earliest life from thee,
And wait, until with glad thanksgiving
I shall be free.

For life to me is as a station
Wherein apart a traveller stands—
One absent long from home and nation,
In other lands;

And I, as he who stands and listens,
Amid the twilight's chill and gloom,
To hear, approaching in the distance,
The train for home.

For death shall bring another mating.
Beyond the shadows of the tomb,
On yonder shore a bride is waiting
Until I come.

In yonder field are children playing,
And there—oh! vision of delight!—
I see the child and mother straying
In robes of white.

Thou, then, the longing heart that breakest,
Stealing the treasures one by one,
I'll call Thee blessed when thou makest
The parted—one.

SELECT STORY.

THE MYSTERIOUS WIDOW.

During the summer of 1811, the British had laid claim to all that portion of the district of Maine lying east of the Penobscot. Shortly before the arrival of the English squadron, Commodore Tucker had been sent around to Penobscot Bay to protect the American coasters and while the British sailed up to Castine, he was laying at Thomaston.

It was a schooner that the Commodore commanded, but it was a heavy one, well manned and armed; and she carried the true Yankee "grit" upon her deck, of which the enemy had received from them rather too many proofs. On the morning of the 28th of August a messenger was sent down from Belfast with the intelligence that the British feared him, also that Sir John Sherbrook, of the British ship had offered a large amount for his capture.

The schooner's keel was just cleared from the mud, and one of the men had been sent upon the wharf to cast off the bow-line, when a wagon drawn by one horse, came rattling down to the spot. The driver, a rough looking countryman, got out upon the wharf, and then assisted a middle-aged woman from the vehicle. The lady's first inquiry was for Commodore Tucker. He was pointed out to her, and she stepped up on the schooner's deck and approached him.

"Commodore," she asked, "when do you sail from here?"

"We sail right off, as soon as possible," he answered.

"Oh, then, I know you will be kind to me," the lady urged, in persuasive tones. "My poor husband died yesterday, and I wish to carry his corpse to Wiscasset, where we belong, and where his parents will take care of it."

"But, my good woman, I shan't go to Wiscasset."

"But if you will only land me at the mouth of the Sheepscot, I will trouble you no more. I can easily find a good boat there to take me up."

"Where is the body?" asked Tucker.

"In the wagon," returned the lady, at the same time raising one corner of her shawl to wipe away the gathering tears. "I have a sum of money with me, and you shall be paid for the trouble."

"Tut, tut, woman; if I accommodate you, there won't be any pay about it."

The kind hearted old Commodore was not the man to refuse a favor, and though he did not like the bother of taking the woman and her strange accompanient on board, yet he could not refuse.

Some of the men were sent upon the wharf to bring the body on board. A buffalo robe was lifted off by the man who drove the wagon; beneath it appeared a neat, black coffin. Some words were passed by the seamen as they were putting the coffin on board, which showed pretty plainly that the affair did not exactly suit them. But it may have been but prejudice on their part, but seamen should be allowed to prejudice only once in a while. Ere long the coffin was placed in the hold, and the woman was shown to the cabin. In less than half an hour the schooner was cleared from the wharf, and was standing out in the bay. The wind was light from the eastward, but Tucker had no fear of the frigate, now that she was out, from the bay.

In the evening the lady passenger came on deck, and the Commodore assured her that he should be able to land her early the next morning. She expressed her gratitude, and remarked that before she retired she would like to look and see that her husband's corpse was safe. This was, of course, granted and the hatch was lifted that she might go down into the hold.

"I declare," muttered Daniel Carter, an old sailor, who was standing at the wheel, "she takes on dre'fully."

"Yes, poor thing!" said Tucker, as he heard her sobs and groans.

"D'ye notice what'n eye she's got?" continued Carter.

"No," said Tucker, "only 'twas swollen with tears."

"My eyes! but they shone though when she was standing there lookin at the compass."

Tucker smiled at the man's quaint earnestness and went into the cabin.

When the woman came up from the hold she looked about the deck of the schooner for a few minutes and then went aft. There was something in her countenance that puzzled Carter. He was one of those who had objected to the coffin being brought on board. The woman's eyes ran over the schooner's deck with a strange quickness, and Carter eyed her very sharply. Soon she went to the traffrail, and then came and stood by the binnacle again.

"Look out, or you'll jibe the boon," uttered the passenger.

Carter started, and found that the mainsail was shivering. He gave the helm a couple of spokes aport, and then cast his eyes again upon the woman.

"Thank'ee ma'am," said Dan. "Ha, hold on—why bless my soul there's a big spider in your hair. No—not there Here—I'll—ugh!"

The last ejaculation Dan made as he seemed to pull something from the woman's hair, which he threw upon the deck with the "ugh" above mentioned.

Shortly after the passenger went below and ere long Tucker came on deck.

"Commodore," said Carter, with a remarkable degree of earnestness in his manner, "is the 'oman turned in?"

"I rather think so," said Tucker, looking at the compass. "Look out, look out, Carter. Why, man alive, you're two points south'd of your course."

"Blow me, so I am," said the man, bringing the helm smartly aport. "But say, didn't you notice something peculiar about the old 'oman?"

"Why, Dan, you seem greatly interested about her."

"So I am, Commodore, an' so I am about the coffin, too. Wouldn't it be well for you and I to overhaul it?"

"Pshaw! you're as scared as a child in a graveyard."

"No, not a bit. Just hark a bit. That 'oman ain't no 'oman"

The Commodore pronounced the name of his satanic majesty in the most emphatic manner.

"It's the truth, Commodore. I purtended there was a spider on her hair, and I rubbed my hand agin her face. By Sam Hyde if it wasn't as rough and bearded as a holy stone. You see she told me as how I'd let the boom jibe if I didn't look. I knowed there was no 'oman there, and so I tried. Call somebody to the wheel and let's go and look at the coffin."

The Commodore was thunderstruck by what he heard but with a cool presence of mind that made him what he was he set calmly to thinking. In a few minutes he called one of the men to relieve Carter, and then went down to look after his passenger. The latter had turned in and seemed to be sleeping. Tucker returned and took Carter to one side.

"No noise, now, Carter, follow me as though nothing had happened."

"Sartin."

The two approached the main hatch and stopped to reach it, when Dan's hand touched a small ball that seemed to have been pinned up under the break of the hatch.

"It's a ball of twine," said he.

"Don't touch it, but run and get the lantern," replied Tucker.

Carter sprang to obey, and when he returned a number of men had gathered about the spot. The hatch was raised, and the Commodore carefully picked up the ball of twine and found that it was made fast to something below. He descended to the hold, and there he found the twine ran in beneath the lid of the coffin. He had no doubt now that there was mischief below, and sent Carter for something that might answer for a screw driver. The man soon returned with a stout knife, and the Commodore set to work. He worked very carefully, keeping a bright outlook for the string.

At length the screws were out and the lid very carefully lifted from its place.

"Great heavens!" burst from the lips of the Commodore.

"By Sam Hyde," dropped like a thunder clap from the tongue of young Dan.

"God bless you, Dan!" said the Commodore.

"I knowed," muttered Dan.

The two men stood for a moment and gazed into the coffin. There was no dead man there, but in place thereof was material for the death of a score. The coffin was filled with gunpowder and pitchwood; upon a light frame work in the centre were arranged four pistol, all cocked, and the string entering the coffin from without communicated with the triggers of each.

The first movement of the Commodore was to call for water, and when it was brought he poured three or four bucketfuls into the infernal contrivance, and then he breathed more freely.

"No, no," he muttered, as he leaped from the hold. "No, no, my men. Do nothing rashly; let me go into the cabin first."

Commodore Tucker strode into the cabin; walking up to the bunk where his passenger lay, and grasping hold of the female dress he dragged its wearer out upon the floor. There was a sharp resistance, and the passenger drew a pistol, but it was quickly knocked away; the gown came forth from the remnants of calico and linen.

The fellow was assured that his whole plot had been discovered, and at length he owned that it had been his plan to turn out in the course of the night and intended to have gone aft, carefully unwinding the string as he went along, and then to have got into the boat, cut the falls and as the boat fell into the water, he would have pulled smartly upon the twine.

"And I think you know," he added with a wicked look, "what would follow. All I can say is that I am sorry I didn't do it."

It was with much difficulty that the Commodore prevented the men from killing his man on the spot. He proved to be one of the enemy's officers, and he was to have a heavy reward if he succeeded in destroying the Commodore and his crew.

The prisoner was carried on deck and lashed to the main rigging.

"What a horrid death that villian meant for us!" uttered Carter.

"Yes he did," said Tucker with a shudder.

"He belongs to the same gang that's been robbin' and burnin' the poor folk's houses on the eastern coast," said one of the men.

"Yes," said the Commodore, with a nervous twitch of the muscles about the mouth.

A bitter curse for the prisoner broke on the air, and with clinched fist the Commodore went below.

In the morning, Tucker came on deck. Seguin was in sight on the starboard bow, but when he looked for the prisoner he was gone.

"Carter, where's the villian I lashed here last night?"

"I'm sure I don't know where he is, Commodore. Perhaps he jumped overboard."

The old Commodore looked sternly in Carter's eyes, and he saw a twinkle of satisfaction gleaming there. He hesitated a moment; then he turned away, and muttered to himself—

"Well, well, I can't blame them. If the murderous villian has gone to his death, he's only met a fate which he deserved."

We are going to lose the Dog Star. That most brilliant of the heavenly host which stud the Northern skies, is deserting the earth, and nothing can be done about it. The spectroscope, whose "microscopic eye" can measure distances too small for thought, has discovered that Sirius is travelling off in a tangent at a dogged pace of twenty miles a second The influence of such a fact on the solar system, and particularly on this planet, cannot be calculated. It is a matter of history that in ancient times the Dog Star was supposed to be more powerful than he is to-day. The very name of Dog-is associated with his baneful influence. As soon as he began to rise above the main, a distemper fell upon all canine flesh—they became rabid—both mongrel, puppy, whelp and hound, and curs of low degree." It was the Dog Star's misfortune, not his fault, that he rose at such a time and gained such a time and gained such an opprobrious reputation. Because the sun's rays, falling on rank vegetable refuse in the lands of Greece, caused "mephitic miasmas' to arise, and men sickened and dogs burst from all the restraint of their better natures, Sirius, ranging on high in unconscious glory, was made to bear the blame, and though innocent of the charge, is even now looked upon askance by some unenlightened souls. Perhaps a rumor of this melancholy slander and libel has reached him; at any rate, the fact is no less deplorable that in the course of time we shall miss his bright presence from beside the Bear. Orion will weep in vain for his faithful companion, and the North Star, sitting with sad forebodings aloof from her former throne upon the pole, will curse the day that drove so bright a mate away. If the fact was not proved beyond a doubt, it is possible that we should not discover any appreciable diminution in the Dog Star's brightness. But, knowing the true state of things, by carefully watching from night to night, the trained eye may perceive a difference. It is a solemn fact. The spectroscope is the Iago of each astronomical Othello. Perhaps it is the newest demonstration of the adage, that "When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."—Press.

Dorsey.

Last week the United States court, in Washington, issued a bench warrant for the arrest of ex-Senator Dorsey, This must be a pleasing fact for the republicans to contemplate. It was only some fifteen months ago that a dinner was given in this city to this same Dorsey, as a testimonial of the efficient manner in which he had spread the greenbacks over Indiana for the election of Garfield and Arthur. On that occasion republicans of high degree, stalwarts and half-breeds combined, vied with each other to do honor to this king among ballot bribers. To him they owed the success of their ticket and the renewed opportunity of another four years' feast at the public crib. Why should they not have assembled to do him honor? Why should not Chester A. Arthur and J. Whitelaw Reid have raised the flowing bowl to his valor? Garfield owed his election to his work and that was enough for Reid. Arthur was raised to the vice presidency by his hand, and that was a sufficient pretext. But behind all this there was another tale. Dorsey was commended for the manner in which he had handled the republican sinews of war. Those sinews of war had been obtained from Brady and his colleagues, who now, with Dorsey, are indicted as conspirators and public plunderers. Under these circumstances it must be a pleasant reflection for Chester A. Arthur to remember that he extolled Dorsey as the man who accomplished his election, and that the money which Dorsey spent came from the people through the roguery of Brady and others of the gang. This is not the first republican who has been elected president by stolen funds, but it is the first time that the proof has been brought home to the doors of the White House.—New York Press.

DISTRESS AFTER EATING, the result of indigestion, will no longer be experienced if a half tablespoonful of Simmons Liver Regulator is taken after each meal. It is such a good digester, and so mild and pleasent in its effects, that it is used by many after a hearty meal to ensure good digestion. The Regulator does not nauseate or irritate the stomach, is purely vegetable, and can be taken in any condition of the system, and, unlike any other known medicine, when its use is discontinued, the system is not left constipated.

How Prize-Fighters Die.

Ben Hogan, the reformed pugilist, lately told a Chicago News reporter that prize fighters die prematurely of weakness and disease brought on by their injuries. In fact, they die at or before the time when, if they had not been prize-fighters, they would have been at the prime of life. Charley Gallager died at the age of 30, of consumption, caused by an injury received in his fight with Davis. Davis fell on him planting his knee in his upper left breast. Brandy bears the blame of killing Tom Sayers, but in my opinion he died of injuries inflicted by John C. Heenan. Heenan jumped off a train and hurt himself, and some lay the blame of premature death on the accident, but he died of consumption, produced, in my opinion, by over-training and by the punishment he got in fights with Sayers and King. John Morrissey's death is laid on Bright's disease, but he stood beating enough to kill ten men, and I believe that is what killed him. Yankee Sullivan is said to have been killed by a vigilance committee, but the truth is that he went crazy from the injuries to his head he had received, and committed suicide by opening an artery. Patsy Riordan, one of the grandest men physically that ever lived, died at 36 years of age, a complete physical and mental, wreck. Bod Riddle died the same way, the flesh dropping off his fingers. Joe Womble died in a Montreal insane asylum. And so they go—all of them dying at what ought to be the prime of life.

Preservation of Iron.

A novel way of preserving the surfaces of iron has just been discovered. The treatment is as follows: The iron is subjected to the action of diluted hydrochloric acid, which dissolves the iron, and leaves on the surface a pellicle of homogeneous graphite, which adheres well to the surface of the iron. The piece to be preserved is next treated, in a hydraulically closed receiver, by hot or cold water, or, better, by steam, in such a manner as to completely dissolve and remove the chloride of iron formed. Finally the piece of iron is left to dry in the receiver, from which all liquid has been removed. A solution of caoutchouc, gutta percha, or gum resin in essence of petroleum is then injected. On the essence being evaporated, there remains a solid enamel like coat on the surface of the iron. Instead of previously eliminating the iron salt, it may be utilized in forming a kind of vitreous enamel. For this purpose the iron is immersed, after treatment with the acid, in a bath of silicate and borate of soda. A very pure and brilliant silico-borate of iron is formed, which closes up the pores of the metal. As to the disengaged chlorine, it combines with free soda, forming chloride of sodium, which remains dissolved in the liquid. Thus the important question of the preservation of iron appears to have been brought another step toward solution.

A Dog Car.

The Pullman Palace Car Company has recently placed upon the Pennsylvania Railroad a hunting car, especially constructed for the use of huntsmen desirous of reaching their destination without suffering the inconvenience incident to such excursions. The car, which resembles an ordinary baggage car in outward appearence, is fitted up with conveniences for dogs, baggage and other sporting paraphernalia, while a portion has been partitioned off for sleeping apartments, cooking and other homelike comforts for the hunters. The kennels set apart for the dogs are arranged in tiers around the sides of the car, and they are built with a view of giving the best possible attention to the occupants.

A BAPTIST MINISTER'S EXPERIENCE. I am a Baptist Minister, and before I even thought of being a clergyman, I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, 40 years ago. # THE COLUMBIAN.

G. E. ELWELL, J. K. BITTENBENDER, } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, APRIL 21th, 1882.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic Standing Committee, at the Court House, in Bloomsburg on Tuesday, the 25th day of April, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates to represent this District in the State Convention to be held at Harrisburg, June 28th, 1882.

Bloomsburg, April 19, '82,

C. A. KLEIM, Secretary. G. A. HERRING, Chairman.

The next change in the cabinet will be the removal of Secretary Lincoln. He will soon have to give way to a Stalwart.

It now appears that a bill will be reported from the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, recommending a reduction on the postage on letters from three cents to two.

President Arthur has referred to Congress the propriety of convening an International Congress on November 22nd to consider and discuss methods of preventing war between the nations of the world.

The Ford brothers having plead guilty to the killing of Jesse James, they were sentenced on Tuesday the 27th to be hanged on the 19th of May. Governor Crittenden has granted them an unconditional pardon.

According to the report of R. G. Dun & Co., the greatest number of failures tends to the Western States. Their report for the past several days is; Western, 34; Southern, 33; Middle 19; Eastern, 22. This report is not an exception, but a fair example. Business in the East is done on a much more safe basis now than formerly.

The removal of an Internal Revenue Collector in Pennsylvania may produce a radical change in the management of the Republican party in this Commonwealth. A slap in the face at the Union League played an important part in the battle for municipal reform. "Large oaks from little acorns grow." Beware of little acorns. —Phila. Press.

Attorney General Brewster has given his decision in the Fitz John Porter case, "that the President can afford the applicant no relief through a revision of the sentence in his case." He says, however, that that part of the sentence referring to his disability to hold office of trust or profit, "may be remitted by the pardoning power," but this "would not return the applicant to the office in the military service from which he was dismissed."

Governor Pitkin of Colorado appointed Geo. M. Chilcott to serve the unexpired term of Mr. Teller in the United States Senate. Mr. Chilcott was formerly from Pennsylvania. His present home is in Pueblo. This appointment is not the choice of the majority of the people in Colorado, and the Governor has brought upon himself the displeasure of many of the citizens.

Mr. Hill, of Colorado, presented to the Senate the credentials of Geo. M. Chilcott on Tuesday, the 17th and he was duly qualified and took his seat.

Postmaster Beckley thinks it will be a good thing if the report be true that Governor Hoyt will remove to New York at the expiration of his term of office. We have no doubt he is sincere in this expression of opinion, and we have no doubt that Mr. B. and all the other satellites of Cameron would be more than pleased if they could move Wolfe, MacVeagh, and about one hundred thousand other independent republicans, out of the state before next election. They see the hand writing on the wall and are becoming alarmed.

Guiteau claims that he "removed" President Garfield to save the republican party. It now begins to look as though his act will cause the dissolution of that party. The administration of Garfield was gradually healing all wounds within the ranks, except Conkling's, but Chester A. Arthur has made his a "stalwart" administration and has thereby sealed the doom of the party that he now leads through the act of an assassin. The people of this country are not prepared for such a government as Arthur is giving us, and honest republicans everywhere are denouncing his methods.

Hon. Henry P. Ross, President judge of the County of Montgomery, died at his home on Thursday, April 13th, after an illness of but a few days. He was holding Court for several days during the previous week, and even as late as Monday of the following week, but suffering greatly from inflamatory rheumatism he was compelled to take his bed. On Thursday the rheumatism reached the heart and life soon gently passed away. Judge Ross was widely known throughout the State and was held in high esteem by all with whom he was associated. In 1878 he was the Democratic candidate for Supreme Judge in this State.

The Democratic Administration of the City of Charleston, South Carolina, has been so economical and has so reduced the former burdensome rate of taxation, and at the same time given the city's securities a so much greater value in the market, that the Mayor's last annual review of the financial condition of the city has been sent abroad, very wisely, as an advertisement of the city's advantages for the investment of capital. The debt of Charleston in 1870 was $5,241,709; it is now $4,264,050. The debt was reduced during the year 1881 $362,300, all the liabilites were promptly paid and a sinking fund has been set aside to cancel bonds as they become due.—N. Y. World.

President Arthur in a message to Congress recommends an appropriation of $2,020,000 for rebuilding the levees along the Mississippi. The river Commissioners have heretofore recommended $1,010,000 as the amount necessary for making all repairs, but the President suggests a larger amount so that the levees may be made more secure and thus avoid in the future another such flood as has occurred this season. In his message he adds that it might be necessary for an appropriation from time to time amounting in the aggregate to twenty or thirty millions, in order to make a permanent improvement, and give security to the valley; but this would extend over a period of several years, and thus make a small appropriation each year.

At a meeting of the board of Pardons last Tuesday the case of Edward Smith Jr, who was sentenced to fourteen years for attempting to poison a family in Philadelphia, was heard. The poison was administered in coffee on several occasions but not in sufficient quantities to destroy life. Attorney General Palmer remarked to the counsel who was presenting Smith's case that the proper thing to do with such a man was to shoot him instead of pardoning him. The gentleman in whose family Smith was employed replied that he had ample opportunity to shoot him, but did not do so, whereupon the Attorney General said, "Then you made a great mistake." If Mr. Palmer entertains any such notions as to the proper way to punish criminals he had better resign from the position of legal adviser to the State officials. It is his duty to see that the laws are strictly observed, and when he so far forgets himself as to advise men to commit murder he disgraces the high office which he now occupies. The laws and the courts are fully competent to punish all classes of criminals, and an Attorney General ought not to advocate Lynch law, no matter what the provocation may be. The trouble with Palmer is that his mouth leaks sometimes.

A Strike at Bethlehem.

BETHLEHEM, Penna., April 19.—About 200 of the men working in blast furnace of the Bethlehem rolling mill struck to-night upon being notified that their demand for an increase of wages would not be acceded to. More of the employes are expected to go out to-morrow.

EXPENSES OF GARFIELD'S SICKNESS AND DEATH.

The majority report on the bill reported by Mr. Taylor, from the select committee to audit the expenses of the late President, sets forth "that after giving such attendance to the subject as its importance demands, your committee are of the opinion that congress may properly and legally assume the expenses attendant upon the illness and burial of the late President, upon the ground that he was stricken down while he was and because he was in the discharge of his duties as chief executive officer of the nation and commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

The bill appropriates for the relief of Lucretia R. Garfield the sum of $50,000, less any sum paid to the late President Garfield on account of his salary as president of the United States. It pays to Dr. Bliss, $25,000; to Drs. Agnew and Hamilton, $15,000 each; to Dr. Reyburn, $10,000; to Dr Boynton, $10,000; to Dr. Susan Edson, $10,000; to William J. Crump, $3,000; to the secretary of the navy, $10,882; to Wm. R, Spear (undertaker), $1,835; to C. F. Jones, of Elberon, $1,092, and to various merchants and others, sums ranging from fifty cents to $1,000. It provides that when Surgeon General J. K. Barnes shall be retired from active service, he shall be placed on the retired list with the rank and pay of major general. It further provides that there shall be added to the medical corps of the army one surgeon with the rank, pay and emoluments of a lieutenant colonel, and authorizes the president to promote Joseph J. Woodward to that position.

THE THREE REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES.

SPOILS, BOSSES AND REPUDIATION.

At a meeting of the Civil Service Reform Association of Philadelphia held one evening last week, Wayne MacVeagh, Garfield's Attorney General, expressed his opinion of the Republican party in general, and of C. A. Arthur in particular. The following is the full text of his remarks:

President Hayes did me the honor to consult me fully upon his famous civil service reform order. The difficulty with civil service reform under the Hayes administration was due to the fact that unscrupulous men in the party had been guilty of questionable acts in the south. When the question came up of their reward President Hayes allowed himself to be over-persuaded and give office to the desperate political adventurers of Louisiana and Florida. From that moment confidence in the sincerity of his motives was lost. I regarded his famous order as a long and wise step toward reform; but, as a matter of fact, the closing days of his administration saw the effort of Secretary Sherman to nominate himself for the Presidency by the aid—in part, at least, as was alleged—of the Treasury department.

Men do not change their characters after reaching fifty years of age. What President Arthur was in the Custom House at New York he is in the White House at Washington. He is a kindly, well-disposed gentleman, of many friendships. My own relations with him have always been friendly. But it is useless to deny that President Hayes failed in crucial tests. It is the same with President Arthur.

My party seems now to have but three principles, and I happen to be earnestly and vigorously opposed to every one of them. Its first principle is the spoils system; I am opposed to that. Its next principle is the boss system; I am opposed to that. The only other principle of the party, that I can discover, is the repudiation of the State debt of Virginia; I am opposed to that. So, I am a Republican under difficulties, and we are all of us becoming so.

You are surprised at not getting a response to your communication from President Arthur. But he has always done what you are censuring to-night. He always was for the boss system. The boss system is a graded system, going up from the drinking saloons of large cities through the different official ranks to Governors and Presidents. Those men to-day rest on the spoils system. They need the degradation and demoralization of the civil service. Their entire political structure depends upon it. The only way is to overwhelm them with votes. You must supplant them with other men.

Look at the awful humiliation through which Mahone and his associates are dragging the State of Virginia. Every citizen must be ashamed of the spectacle. The administration is prostituting the National Treasury to enable a certain portion of the people of Virginia to force another portion to repudiate her debt. If we could charge that crime upon the party responsible for the rebellion—if we could charge it upon the Bourbon Democracy—it would be some relief. But it is being done by the party which represents the names of Abraham Lincoln and Charles Sumner. I am not a sanguine man, but I don't see why we can't make it less comfortable for the gentlemen who mis represent Philadelphia and Pennsylvania in Congress in reference to a reform of the civil service.

Governor Hoyt has named Charles H. Stinson as the successor of Judge Ross of Montgomery county, Mr. Stinson is a republican. He has had a practice of more than thirty years at the bar of Montgomery county. A Judge will be elected by the people in November, as the present term then expires.

The senate finance committee has complied with the request of Senator Mitchell that action on the nomination of Samuel L. Jackson to be collector of the Twenty-third Pennsylvania district be posponed until he can be heard in opposition to it. In the meantime Senator Mitchell is not without hope of being able to induce the President to withdraw the nomination, and has already taken steps to secure such a result. There is no probability of an agreement between Senators Mitchell and Cameron over the nomination, unless it is withdrawn, which does not seem probable. The question is simply one as to which of the two Pennsylvania senators can command the most votes in the senate.

Congress has passed another bill which prohibits Chinese immigration for ten years, thus meeting the objections of President Arthur, who thought twenty years prohibition too long. If they ought not to be allowed to come to this country for ten years it is hard to understand why they should be invited here at the expiration of that time. A Chinaman is a Chinaman, and he will wear his queue, and smoke his opium, and eat with his chop sticks, and worship his idols, and work for lower wages than white men can afford to take, just as much in ten years from now as at present. Perhaps, however, President Arthur expects to christianize the Chinese empire during the next decade.

It would be interesting to hear the arguments by which the Senators who refused to confirm Chandler's appointment as solicitor General persuaded themselves that they should vote for his confirmation for the more important office of Secetary of the Navy. Chandler's appointment by Garfield to a subordinate position was regarded as an outrage on the public sense of decency that was to be resented; his appointment by Arthur to a Cabinet office is acquiesced in without an objection from a single Republican Senator. The case being altered does alter the case, sure enough. But the Senators are not especially to be criticised. The whole Republican press, with scarcely a respectable exception, denounced Chandler's former nomination; now the organs that revolt at the elevation of this "political tramp" to the head of the Navy Department could be counted on one's fingers. This shows what a change a little bull dog pistol can bring about—not only a change of men and measures, but a change of morals as well. There was a time when a President of the United States would not have selected a notorious jobber as one of his advisers, to control an expected appropriation of ten millions, and when the Senate of the United States would have tolerated no such nomination if it had been made. Guiteau has changed all that. —Phila. Times.

At a meeting of the Democratic County Committee, held in this place Thursday, the 6th inst., a resolution was passed declaring the first choice of the Democrats of Bradford for governor to be Hon. William Elwell, of Columbia county. A better nomination for Governor than that of Judge Elwell could not be made by the party. He fills all the requisites laid down by Jefferson. He is capable, honest and patriotic, and if elected would lend dignity and honor to the office. If nominated he would have a large following in this, the county where he was for a long time, a resident.—Towanda Journal.

The managers of the Bloomsburg Opera House, have had the services of J. F. Wise, of Philadelphia, in the painting of the inside of the building. The ceiling, as well as the wood work has all received a neat dress of paint, and looks like a new hall. The drop curtain is undergoing needed repairs, and will no doubt be so arranged as to give better satisfaction in the future. The managers of the hall are using every means possible to make the surroundings as pleasing and attractive as taste will permit. It certainly has a fine appearance now and lovers of theatres may be glad to know that the work has been done in so artistic a style, and all for their own comfort.

AN OLDER ONE—Among the matters to be treated of in Col. Freeze's "History of Columbia County," is the bibliography. By the kindness of Judge Painter he has received for inspection a copy of the Columbia County Register of Feb. 9 1830, Vol. 11 No. 47, published by Thomas Painter Esq. well known to our citizens. Among other interesting matter it contains a notice of the marriage of Mr. William Pursel and Miss Susan Fornwald; John G. Montgomery Esquire, and Miss Deborah B. Kehr, and her most untimely death, on the next day, on the way from her father's house to that of her husband's father. Also, the death of the son of Mr. Painter, Mr. Joseph Israel Painter. The advertisers have all closed business and departed, but the names of William G. Hurley, John McWilliams, Joseph Paxton and John Mehrling have a familiar sound.

The display of Northern lights on Sunday last was something extraordinary. It was first noticed about 9 o'clock in the evening and continued until after midnight. At times the sky presented such a blood-red appearance that one would have thought there was a great conflagration. At Petersburg, Va. the light was so bright that the street lamps could have been dispensed with. At Chicago the air seemed so charged with electricity that the telegraph wires would not work with the batteries connected. At Cleveland, Ohio, it affected a great many persons who were troubled with nervous disorders. The pastor of the M. E. Church was prostrated in the pulpit while praying. Ladies fainted in the Church. Those who were out of doors as well as those in the Church complained of oppressive sensations. The display was noticed by a great many people in all sections of the country, and will probably be ever remembered because of its continued brightness.

A meeting was held last week in the Wyoming Valley Hotel at Wilkes Barre, to arouse an interest in the people along the Susquehanna river and secure an appropriation for the improvement of the river bed so as to make it navigable from Havre-de-Grace to Athens, and finally to have it reach Elmira and Owego, N. Y. Congressman Scranton was present at the meeting and expressed his opinion that if a committee should be chosen from among the citizens in and about Wilkes Barre and go before the River and Harbor committee at Washington, some good might be done. A resolution was adopted urging Congressman Scranton to use every effort to secure an appropriation of $100,000. If other Congressmen, whose districts lie along the Susquehanna would bend their efforts to this same end, the time might soon come when this grand river will be of some service as a means of transportation.

William M. Quick left his home in Bloomsburg on Thursday morning, April 6th for the purpose as he said, of bringing home a horse he had purchased of a Mr. Johnson, in Danville, on the previous Tuesday. He went to Rupert on foot, called to see his mother, saw and talked with his brother, said he was going to get or buy a horse, bought a ticket at the L. & B. office for Danville, and from that time to this has not been seen by anybody so far as his friends can ascertain. His failure to return on Thursday evening excited no alarm, as he had said if he did not get the Johnson horse he would look about till he did get one. Not returning on Friday evening his friends became uneasy and began making inquiries. But no one saw him get on the train at Rupert and no one saw him get off at Danville, and Mr. Johnson says he was there on Tuesday and was to return on Thursday but did not. Inquiries at Danville, Northumberland and Sunbury, and along the canal where he is well known return no word of him, and at Milton and other points, are equally fruitless. Dispatches to relatives in the West bring the same reply. There is absolutely no cause known for his absence. He is a tall slim man, somewhat gray, with blue eyes and about forty years of age. Information will be gratefully received by Hugh D. Quick, Rupert, Penna., or by G. M. Quick, or John G. Freeze Bloomsburg Pa.

S. L. Brown of wilkes Barre submits a proposition to the citizens of Wilkes Barre and Kingston, in regard to raising the road between the two places to such a height as to avoid all the inconveniences suffered at every freshet. He pledges himself to be one of fifty or one hundred men to raise $10,000, which, with the aid of the public road taxes and a liberal amount from the Street Railway Company, would be sufficient to remedy the great evil. He suggests having arches made at all the low points in the road, of sufficient capacity to carry off all the overflow water.

Catawissa Locals.

Mr. Charles Ellis, boss of the wreck train on the P. & R. R. R. here was seriously injured while picking up some lumber at McAuly one day last week. Mr. George Ervin was also hurt at the same time and place. Both are improving slowly.

Mr. Hamilton Clark is building a fine double house on Shuman Street. This will be the nicest street in town in the not distant future.

Notwithstanding the large number of buildings being erected here, it is a fact that about twenty families have moved away this Spring because there were no houses to rent.

Drs. I. W. and C. C. Willits have formed a partnership for the practice of medicine.

The tracklayers are expected to be here soon to commence their work on this end of the N. & W. B. R. R., as the filling in at the bridge is about completed.

When you are in need of any groceries and queenswave, call at
F. S. KINPORTS.
Successor to T. W. Conner.

R. B. Kline who has been located at Hornellsville N. Y. as car inspector for the past two years is now at home since the death of his father. He is going to remain with the family the coming summer.

John McHenry has rented his farm to Henry Corothers for the year and Henry has moved in the house with them.

Ex-Judge Derr was the auctioneer of the Hirleman & Ash sale which took place on Saturday last. We learn they are going to dissolve partnership this Spring and Hirleman will take charge of the store.

There was a Union Sabbath School organized at the Christian Church last Sabbath morning with Frank Derr, Superintendent.

Miss Ida Derr has recently returned home having spent a few days visiting her sister, Mrs. J. S. Woods. Ida is a first class dress-maker. Ladies desiring a dress made to order and in the latest style would do well to patronize Ida.

"The Pilgrim" did remarkably well in the last splinter- on speaking of the qualifications and honesty of our worthy fellow citizen, Esquire Derr, as a candidate for member of the legislature.

A Railroad Fight.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company has filed a bill in equity in this county asking the Court to grant an injunction to restrain the North & West Branch Railway Company from crossing their track at grade near Rupert bridge. The bill alleges that the crossing at grade is impracticable, and that it would be very dangerous to both companies, the situation being such that it would be impossible for an engineer on either road to see a train coming on the other in time to stop. The N. & W. B. Railway Company in their answer allege that the crossing will be no more dangerous than any other of the same kind, and they are numerous; that it is the only practicable method of crossing, as an overhead trestling would destroy the grade and be very expensive, and a crossing further down the track would necessitate a great amount of excavation. They also set up an article of agreement entered into between the two companies, in which the complainant fully agrees that the crossing should be made at grade, and at the point now proposed. Testimony was heard in the case by Judge Elwell, on Wednesday, S. P. Wolverton representing the Philadelphia & Reading Company and H. W. Palmer and C. R. Buckalew the N. & W. B. Railway Company. Quite a number of civil engineers were examined by each side, but being unable to conclude the testimony the hearing was continued until Friday of next week.

Among the persons present and interested in the case were Charles Parrish and I. A. Stearns of Wilkesbarre, R. D. Barclay, I. N. DuBarry, John A. Wilson, W. Lorenz, of Philadelphia, F. E. Knight, Cortland, C. W. Buchholz, Pottstown.

Webster's Unabridged.

The new edition of the popular dictionary contains 1928 pages, 3000 engravings, 4 pages of colored plates, a supplement of over 4600 new words and meanings, and a biographical dictionary of over 9700 names. It is warmly endorsed by more than fifty College Presidents, and the best American and European scholars.

The following facts will show why Webster's Dictionary ought not to be sold as low as Worcester's:—

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary contains one-fifth more matter than Worcester's, the type being smaller, thereby giving much more on a page. In the amount of matter it contains, it is believed to be the largest volume published.

Webster contains 118,000 words in its vocabulary,—about 3000 more than the latest edition of Worcester.

Webster contains 3000 Illustrations in the body of the work, and these are repeated, classified, finely printed on expensive tinted paper, at the end of the work. Worcester contains about 1100 Illustrations in the body only, not repeated as in Webster.

Webster embodies about one hundred years of literary labor.

The publishers' retail price of Webster is $12; the publishers' retail price of Worcester is $10.

The New Edition of Webster's Unabridged contains a Biographical Dictionary of 9700 noted persons, giving Name, Pronunciation, Nationality, Profession and Date of each. Also a Table giving names and explanations of such Fictitious Persons and Places as are often referred to in literature and conversation,—as the characters in the works of Dickens, Scott, etc.

Neither of these two features are contained in Worcester or any other dictionary.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dramshop whiskey beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused by imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness, and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors, and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest of blessings.

Good Sorts Of Apples.

ANNUAL BEARING APPLE TREES.—Orchardists have tried in many ways to make their apple trees bear annual crops, instead of bi-ennial ones as is the case, practically. But, there are many kinds of apples which may be relied on for an annual crop, and why not plant more largely of these kinds? In Pennsylvania, for instance, the Red Astrachan and White Doctor never fails to give fair crops. A writer in the Virginia Rural Messenger names the following kinds as reliable in the same way:—"King of Tompkins County, winter apples: Horse Apple, summer; King of the Pippens, English fall; Winthrop's Pearmain, fall; Hulbert, late fall; Yellow Bellflower, early winter; Chronicle or Cotton Apples—has been kept in good condition two years; Standard's Seedling, winter; Golden Dixie, large, good and very beautiful early apple, described in Downing's third appendix. Striped June, among the earliest; American Golden Russet, excellent late fall: Ramsdel's Sweeting, late fall, and yields every year enormously if well fed."

RED CANADA APPLES.—A New England writer says of the above named apple:

"This is none other than the old French Nonsuch. We have raised this apple on our place for nearly forty years, and it is always sold quick and high. Now isn't it strange that we have spent time and money, and wasted them both, on lots and lots of new and worthless varieties, and neglected this the most charming and profitable of all apples, merely because it was an old sort. But such is the fact. The Hubbardston is rather a slow grower, but this is not, at least I do not think it is, and it is a constant bearer, alternate years a great bearer. Fruit above medium size and of great beauty, keeps well, packs well and sells well. It will bring more to-day in the Liverpool market than any other variety."

The buisness of raising apples is much more important now than it used to be, owing to the foreign demand for this fruit. In planting out orchards it should be borne in mind to set out good, keeping kinds, fit to export, as well as of good eating qualities.

Field Root Crops.

GROWING THE PARSNIP.—The parsnip, though of an uninviting taste to most children, is liked generally by older persons, and is said to be a particularly wholesome vegetable. Like the carrot it requires rich, deep ground, rich from a previous year's manuring. Manure, especially if fresh, makes the roots somewhat ill-shaped. As the seed germinates slowly, it should be sown very early in the spring, in drills eighteen inches apart, and covering the seed half an inch with the finest of the soil. The soil should be thoroughly rolled after sowing: when well up thin out to five or six inches apart in the rows. The part of the crop required for spring use can remain in the ground during the winter. A few can be stored in the cellar, covered with sand. For feeding cattle, it is very desirable; and as it does well all winter standing in the ground where it grew, it might be made use of as an early spring root for cattle.

MANGLE WURZELS.—When it is considered how ravenously cattle devour turnips, mangels, carrots, and other root crops, the wonder is that the European plan of making roots a prominent feature in farm crops is not adopted here. Mangles, for instance, are of easy culture. Everyone who has grown garden beets could similarly grow mangles. To store these roots for winter, Joseph Harris says the best way is in heaps out of doors as some do potatoes. He says:

"I select, if possible, a dry sandy knoll, plow out a pit three or four feet wide, and as long as you wish. Twist or cut off the leaves from the mangles, not to close, and put the roots in the pit, packing them or 'cording' them so as to make the roof steep enough to shed rain. If you will scatter a quantity of dry, light soil in among the beats in the pit, say enough to fill up the space between the beets, you will find that the beats do not get warm in the pit, and will come out fresh and nice in the spring. Do not be afraid to throw in a dozen good shovelfuls of soil to each cart load of beets. And before putting on a coat of straw I throw on a layer of sandy soil all over the heap of beets an inch or two thick. Put on a layer of straw about six inches thick, and then six inches of dirt, and this is all that is necessary till very cold weather, when I put on another layer of straw or horse litter and cover it with dirt. In covering the heaps with dirt, we plow around and round the heap with a plow throwing the dirt toward the heap. This greatly lessens the labor.

THE JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE.—The subject of varying the assortment of food for cattle in the winter is likely to become of more importance every year. The dairying interests demands this. As growers look about them for additional root crops it may be that the Jerusalem artichoke will not be overlooked. As a vegetable it has been long esteemed by Europeans. In our Southern States it would prove a valuable root for farmers. In the South three bushels of tubers are amply sufficent to plant an acre, the large ones being cut into pieces with two or three eyes like potatoes. The land should be thoroughly plowed, and from January to April they should be planted in furrows about eighteen inches apart, and covering with a plow.

When they were well up, plow them as you would corn; and when about a foot high, plow them again throwing a furrow to each side, and you are done cultivating them forever. The first year they will yield a good crop, (from five to eight hundred bushels), and will improve for two or three years, if the soil is good, till they double the product of the first year. On piney-woods land 1500 to 2000 bushels, it is said, have been produced. In August the tops may be cut and cured for hay, which is quite equal to corn fodder, or may be fed green, soiled. The yield is large, and the tops are eagerly eaten by cattle, horses and mules. The tops if cut, should be taken off about a foot from the ground. One cutting does not at all effect the yield of tubers. In November the hogs should be turned in to harvest the tubers for themselves, and may remain on them till March. In corbonaceous matter—starch or its equivalent—they are but a trifle inferior to potatoes.

From the Milford Dispatch of Pike County, we learn that Frederick Misinger of Hawley will put out four acres of tobacco plants on the Shimer farm in Lackawaxen township this coming June. This is the first effort to raise the weed on a large scale, and if successful it will soon become an article of agriculture in that section.

All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

for N. Fremont St., Baltimore

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago it brought on paralysis, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving.
